Volunteer roles

If you're looking to give your time and want to make a real difference to peoples' lives, then volunteering with us could be for you. While many of our opportunities focus on delivering support to those affected by crime, there are a number of other ways you can get involved.

Work with people affected by crime

Our services make a real difference to those affected by crime and help them to recover and move on with their lives. In one of our community support roles, you'll be trained to offer practical and emotional support to people in the local area.

We're looking for reliable volunteers with great people skills, who are able to listen effectively and signpost those in need of support to the information and services available.

Raise funds and awareness

We are a registered charity, and a number of our services rely entirely on the generosity of the public. We're always looking for people to raise our profile in their local community and help bring in vital donations to allow us to continue our work.

Provide office support

We have a number of offices across England and Wales, including our national support centre in London. We are often in need of administrative support to help them run smoothly. If you're looking to donate your skills and experience in this way, find out how to apply for one of our volunteer roles.

Share your professional skills

Whether you're a graphic designer, a project manager or an HR professional, we may have a project that needs your expert skills. If you're interested in giving some of your time to support our work, Send your CV to volunteering@victimsupport.org.uk and we'll be in touch.

If you'd like to join us as a volunteer, call us to find out how to apply.
